The University of Indonesia says it will follow up within 60 days on a report about two financial irregularities, which hint at possible corruption in one of the country's oldest and largest universities.

Your comments:

I believe that failure to use or spend the allocated budget in one fiscal year is not a crime.

It happens every year in every state department and the funds should be reallocated for the next fiscal year.

It becomes a criminal act if they report 100 percent progress while actually the real progress is below 100 percent.
